Sanborn Head Announces Rising Leaders

JANUARY 20, 2020

Sanborn Head is proud to announce new titles for Tim White, PG and Seth Soos, PE, effective January 1, 2020.

"It's great to see these emerging leaders stepping into their own," said President and Chief Operating Officer Barret Cole. "Tim and Seth are outstanding individuals, and we're very lucky to have them on the team that is leading the future success of Sanborn Head."

Tim White, PG has been promoted to Project Director. Tim is a hydrogeologist by training who has distinguished himself as a leader with clients, our staff, and the firm. He has helped guide numerous high-profile projects through his ability to blend keen attention to detail with a big-picture view of what the client really needs. "Tim radiates passion and optimism," Cole noted. "His collaborative and conscientious approach is inspirational to all of us."

Seth Soos, PE has assumed leadership of Sanborn Head's Energy group. Seth epitomizes the company's values of integrity, collegiality, passion, and learning. He applies his technical skill in natural gas and owner's engineering services to projects, all with the best interests of our clients in mind. Seth is a consummate professional; he is selfless and tireless in his advocacy for his clients and his team. "Seth has a quiet leadership style that makes a big impact," Cole reported. "We're excited that Seth will be guiding our Energy team as we continue to expand services nationwide."
